

I. Policy on Marketing Communications to Children

Children have wide access to marketing communications, and some lack the ability to critically reflect on and process marketing information directed at them. In its corporate materials, the company does not advertise products or services to children under the age of 12.